TUES. OCTOBER 27TH
7PM - 8:30PM

HOSTED BY
Robert C. Whisonant,
Radford University Professor Emeritus

Arming the Confederacy: During the Civil War, southwestern Virginia's mineral resources became extremely important to the Confederate war effort. This presentation will explore the vast amount of minerals used by the South and the ways that the region's railroads served as one of the most critical supply routes for the military forces and civilians in eastern Virginia.
